research but were told that there were probably too many potential conflicts of interest, biases, and hidden agendas for that to be considered. We'll just have to do it on our own, anonymously, unsung, and leave the final judgments up to the pros.

transplanted to the front entrance five years earlier) to another location on the winery property. So much for planning.

At the last minute, the tree movers backed out. If we didn't get the trees out of the way within hours, they would be bulldozed. Desperate phone calls around Napa and Sonoma yielded nothing until an hour before the demolition was scheduled to begin. That's when Dale called back and said he would be willing, even though he had already put in more than a full day's work, to come over and save the olive trees.

With the help of our Bill Lindner, the last minute rescue was completed. The trees are alive and thriving, together again in our new olive grove.

Dale and Bill, St. Supéry thanks you and the trees thank you. As Martha Stewart would say, it's a good thing.
